TOTAL LOSS OF TEETH?

There are solutions for patients who have lost all their teeth, which require a variable number of implants to stabilize, retain and support a prosthesis removable or a fixed total denture.

Consult your dentist to define the most appropriate treatment plan.

IMPLANT SUPPORTED OVERDENTURE

- . Total prosthesis supported by dental implants, with the possibility to be removed for hygiene cleaning by the patient.
- . It is supported by gum tissue and is held by the implants inserted into the upper or lower jaw, this overdenture increases stability and retention.
- . Provides an improvement on chewing, aesthetics, phonetics and patient comfort.

FIXED FULL ARCH

- . Full-arch implant restorations can offer superior aesthetics and have long-term durability.
- . Restore function, phonetics, aesthetics and confidence in cases of total teeth loss.
- . Long-term and predictable treatment for full-mouth teeth replacement that avoid peri-implant bone loss.
